10-14 November 2025

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

The Conference on Land Policy in Africa (CLPA) is organised biennially by the African Land Policy Centre (ALPC), a joint initiative of the African Union Commission (AUC), the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa (ECA), and the African Development Bank (AfDB). The goal is to deepen capacity for land policy in Africa through improved access to knowledge and information on land policymaking and implementation. In particular, the CLPA is a platform for presenting research findings and focusing the attention of a comprehensive range of stakeholders on the issues and status of land policy development, implementation and monitoring in Africa. The CLPA also provides a unique opportunity to showcase emerging and promising practices and facilitate networking. Conference participants include researchers, academicians, governments (including parliamentarians and judicial officers), women and youth organisations, traditional authorities, farmers, civil society, private sector, land practitioners and development partners.

The CLPA was first held in 2014, focusing on land, investment and agriculture. A second edition of CLPA was held in November 2017 under a theme targeting youth, land and employment. A third edition was held in 2019 and focused on winning the fight against corruption in the land sector. As a result of COVID-19, the fourth CLPA which took place on November 2-4, 2021, was hybrid with the physical component held in Kigali, Rwanda, under the theme of “Land governance for safeguarding art, culture and heritage towards the Africa We Want”. On November 21 to 24, 2023, the fifth edition of the conference was held under the theme of “Promoting Sustainable Land Governance in Africa for Accelerated implementation of the African Continental Free Trade Area, AfCFTA” which was the AU Theme of the Year.

The 2025 Conference Theme

From November 10 to 14, 2025, the tripartite consortium consisting of the African Union Commission, the African Development Bank and United Nations Economic Commission for Africa will be holding the Sixth Conference on Land Policy in Africa in the context of the AU theme for 2025 which is “Justice for Africans and People of African Descent Through Reparations.” The theme provides an opportunity for African citizenry and the African diaspora to build a common position in the pursuit of justice and reparations for historical crimes and mass atrocities committed against Africans and people of African Descent, including through slavery, colonization, apartheid, genocide and neocolonial practices.

African land, African natural resources and the African people have for centuries been targeted by other nations for the provision of raw materials and labour. During the transatlantic slave trade, African men and women were kidnapped and sold off to work without pay and under inhuman and extremely harsh conditions in plantations, constructions and industries in the United States, the Caribbean Islands and Britain. They created wealth to slave owners and the countries in which they were enslaved, working under inhuman and intolerable situations.

Enslaved Africans were denied the right to own property and did not benefit from the land on which they worked. The policy of racial exclusion and discrimination from owning and accessing land through post-slavery systems such as share cropping and segregationist land laws have contributed to sharp social and economic inequalities and poverty among people of African descent.

The violations experienced by Africans and the People of African Descent during slavery were replicated during the colonial period, and continue through extractive and unjust neo-colonial practices. During the colonial period fertile and productive land was alienated, natural resources were pillaged and African heritage resources were looted. African cultures were demonized and decimated because they were viewed as a challenge to Western worldviews. Cash crops to cater for European interests were introduced and values that undermine indigenous knowledge systems and threaten food security entrenched.

It is important to address land tenure and equity challenges in Africa by critically examining the colonial and contemporary trends to come up with viable and sustainable solutions. This is especially the case due to the statutory frameworks which often mirror colonial-era policies and create barriers to equitable land access. Equally important is the need to discuss climate justice in the context of the ecological impacts of the climate emergency. Other issues worth exploration within the prism of Africa’s oppressive encounter with other nations include agri-food systems, urbanization, settlements, trade and economic injustice. By reflecting on these issues and identifying opportunities provided by land reforms, education and human capital, technological advances including Artificial Intelligence (AI), indigenous knowledge systems, creativity, innovation and intra-Africa trade it is possible to propose land governance solutions for Africa and the diaspora that are just, fair and inclusive.

In line with the 2025 AU Theme of the Year, the 2025 Conference on Land Policy in Africa is as follows: Land Governance, Justice and Reparations for Africans and Descendants of People of the African Diaspora.
